#Code

This converts design data into machine-appropriate data and adjusts parameters. In clothing, the illustration data is combined with the user's physical data and converted into a format that can be produced by the machine.